Commentary

Nestle was the best performer, up +12.44%. The company reported full-year results in which sales and margins modestly beat expectations. Management's margin guidance of "16% or above" for 2025 also reassured the market. Lindt was the second-best performer, up +8.48%. While there was no company-specific news, the shares had been strong following full year results in mid-January leading to several broker upgrades. Spirax Group was the worst performer, down -10.13%. The weakness in the share price followed a very strong January, though there was no company specific news behind it. Belimo was the second-worst performer, down -9.19%. Full year results beat expectations, and guidance was in line but management noted capex would "remain elevated". News of certain hyperscalers adjusting their data centre buildout plans also affected the stock.
